Welcome to the updated DLF training programme for 2010–2011

Philippa Bromley

DLF has been in existence for 40 years now. For many of those years we have produced a dedicated programme of training for those who work with people with disabilities and impairment – especially therapists. Our programmes have always been presented by tutors and facilitators who are expert in their field of knowledge and have many years' practical experience as well as the relevant qualifications. As a result, our delegates report that they find the courses relevant, educational, interesting and good value for money, and many return year after year for updates and new learning.

Some of you may have noticed that there have been changes to the programme. Some courses are completely new and some courses have been redesignated to accommodate different skill and knowledge levels for purposes of CPD or equivalent-especially the manual handling courses.

The course programme is now designed so that delegates searching for a specific course for their knowledge base or for a pathway that leads onto a further level of understanding and/or practice can identify what they want from the courses unique webpage-please go to www.dlf.org.uk/training as a starting point for information.

You will also find that in this second new programme we have added in “study days”. These are run on specific topics that are of current interest, and offer professionals the opportunity to compare and use equipment designated for that particular area of expertise. They are interactive and peer facilitated to allow a further learning encounter for experienced staff who are developing their problem-solving skills.

Visit the website to view the course details, to see the answers to frequently asked questions, and to book – and if the course you require isn't here, keep checking the website to see when further courses are added due to demand, or use the contact page to tell us about courses you would find useful.

We look forward to seeing you soon!

Philippa Bromley, Head of Independent Living, DLF
